The Minnesota State University Board

Over 100 Years of Changes and Challenges

by Sharon Miller

Administrative Assistant to the Chancellor

The authority for the governance of the state universities is set out in Minnesota Statutes and states that "The state universities shall be under the management, jurisdiction, and control of the State University Board; and it shall have and possess all of the powers, jurisdiction, and authority, and shall perform all the duties by them possessed and performed on and prior to April 1, 1901, except as hereinafter stated."

This governance structure was established over one hundred years ago when the normal schools were created. At that time, the law provided for the creation of a six-member State Normal Board of Instruction appointed by the Governor, with the State's Superintendent of Public Instruction serving as an ex-officio Board member and secretary of the Board.

As the number of institutions grew and the System expanded, the Board's role also changed and was reflected, in part, by the change in the Board's name and membership. From the State Normal Board of Instruction, it became the State Teachers College Board, the State College Board and in 1975, the State University Board. These name changes were a result of legislative action which simultaneously redesignated the names of the institutions. Membership of the Board increased from six, to eight, and then ten with the Commissioner of Education serving as an ex-officio member and Secretary of the Board.

In 1974, the law was further modified to include a student or recent graduate to serve a two year term on the Board. All other Board members, with the exception of the Commissioner of Education, serve four-year terms. Board members are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The only requirement for appointment is that no two members can reside in the same county.

Current Board members are:

Arnold C. Anderson — Treasurer of the Board whose term expires in 1981. He was first appointed in 1967. Mr. Anderson is a funeral director from Montevideo.

Howard B. Casmey — Secretary of the Board and serves ex-officio. He became Commissioner in 1970 and is from Golden Valley.

Jean A. Farrand — Student member on the Board whose term expires in 1979. She is a Moorhead State University graduate and was appointed in 1977. Ms. Farrand is currently a student at William Mitchell College of Law and resides in St. Paul.

Robert W. Irvine — Term expires in 1981 and he was first appointed in 1975. Mr. Irvine is a lawyer from Detroit Lakes.

Donald G. Jackman — Term expires in 1981 and he was first appointed in 1975. Mr. Jackman is a business agent for the Twin Cities Carpenters District Council and is from Elk River.

Marion Keith — Term expires in 1979. Ms. Keith was appointed in 1978 to fill an unexpired vacancy. She is from Rochester.

Alice S. Keller — Term expires in 1981. She was first appointed in 1975. Ms. Keller is from Winona.

Mary T. Phillips — Vice President of the Board whose term expires in 1981. She was first appointed in 1975. Ms. Phillips is the elementary school principal of the North St. Paul-Maplewood Schools and is from St. Paul.

Orrin V. Rinke — Term expires in 1979 and he was first appointed in 1973. Mr. Rinke is a lawyer from Sauk Rapids.

Kennon V. Rothchild — President of the Board whose term expires in 1981. He was first appointed in 1971. Mr. Rothchild is the chief executive officer and chairman of the Board of H. and Val. J. Rothschild, Inc. and is from Mahtomedi.

With the expansion of the System, the Board's duties changed significantly. In the late 1800's, there was the feeling that lay governing Boards should be responsible for the detailed administrative functions of the institutions by appropriately reflecting the wishes of citizens and parents concerned with educational services in the state. The Board was required to visit and examine each campus at least two days each session in order to ascertain the mode of instruction, progress of the students, and to approve candidates for graduation. The Board prescribed courses of study, appointed each professor, and set the individual salaries. The Board was also responsible for executive and legislative relations.

A few years later, the Board abolished the concept of the traveling examining committees and assigned those responsibilities to the institution's presidents. In 1955, the Board received legislative authorization to create a central office, headed by an Executive Secretary. This action did not necessarily diminish the Board's role; it simply lifted the burden of the day-to-day administrative detail associated with the governance of the System. The Executive Secretary served as the Board's staff person but college presidents continued to report directly to the Board.

The System concept was further developed in 1968 when the Chancellor was made the chief executive officer of the System with the presidents reporting to the Board through the Chancellor.

The current Chancellor is Dr. Garry D. Hays who was appointed in 1976. He had held other positions in the Chancellor's Office since 1971.

The Chancellor's Office is comprised of four divisions including academic affairs, finance, facilities, and personnel and employee relations.

The Chancellor is accountable to the Board for making certain that the System operates in accord with Minnesota Statutes, Governing Rules, and internal policies and procedures. The Chancellor also is responsible for providing the Board with professional judgments on all matters affecting the System and the universities, and for representing the System to the Governor, Legislature, other state agencies, and to the public at large.

Thus, the Board is still involved with the total scope of physical facilities, academic programs, collective bargaining agreements with faculty and administrators, and fiscal operations. However, as a lay Governing Board, with its members dedicated to other professions, much of the administrative minutiae is gone, and the Board addresses itself to policy issues and to the broader challenges facing higher education today.

Nursing

a moving, expanding program

When you go upstairs in Phelps these days, you're met with the sounds of hammers and saws. What was once the lab school is being remodeled to become the Department of Nursing. For the first time in 14 years of its existence, all of the faculty will have offices in one building. As a result of an intensive recruitment effort in the past year, there are now twenty-one faculty members in Nursing.

Down the hall from the offices are the A-V tutorial lab, and the new skills lab — already too small to meet the needs of a growing department. By the end of the year expansion space will be available.

Nursing is expanding in southeastern Minnesota. In 1975, the Legislature provided funds for a baccalaureate nursing degree to be offered in Rochester to help R.N.s who wished to return to school. There are now 43 students enrolled in Rochester. Classrooms and offices are in Northrop School. Students may take courses on either campus.

Thirty nursing students are commuting to Rochester this Fall for clinical experiences at Methodist and St. Mary's hospitals, in addition to their experiences at Community Memorial in Winona.

Community facilities have been expanded to include Houston and Dodge County Public Health Nursing Services, as well as those already provided by Winona County and Olmsted County Public Health Nursing. Hiawatha Valley Mental Health Center and Rochester State Hospital provide mental health experiences. Student nurses participate in public school health screening programs, run blood pressure screening clinics, and assist in blood bank and crippled children's clinics.

At Winona State, new, exciting electives are being developed for nursing students. Biomedical ethics, health teaching methods for school nurses, a course in energy, and medical anthropology are being offered by other departments and planned especially for health professions.

In 1977, nursing became the largest department at Winona State. There are more applicants for admission than can be accepted. Students and faculty are proud and enthusiastic about being part of this moving, expanding program.

Reminiscing

While I was gathering the material for the article on the Class of '53 that appeared in the Summer Alum, I came across a book entitled Phelps Best Years. Many a student teacher spent a great deal of time in Phelps. The forward to the book was "The sports and social events which were our happiest moments at school made a lasting impression on us. In this, our first annual, we have tried to compose those joyful times into a book, which will make 1952-53 at Phelps a year which will live in our memories."

The book only covered the junior high in Phelps. Of the 24 ninth graders shown, only one, Tom Knopp, class of '64, graduated from WSC. None of the 17 eighth graders or 19 seventh graders graduated from Winona State College. They had such functions as Civic League, Cheerleaders and Yearbook staff. They had the heavyweights and lightweights basketball team and football. The GAA girls participated in softball, tennis, soccer, speedball, basketball, volleyball and relays. Then there were parties galore.

To oversee the whole operation there was one Glen Fishbaugher.

Mr. Glen Fishbaugher

A quote from faculty and administration: "Faculty members of Phelps Junior High are the principal and seventh grade homeroom teacher, Mr. Daniel Hoyt, the eighth grade homeroom teacher, Mr. J. Cameron Guthrie, and the ninth grade homeroom teacher, Miss Magda Talle. These instructors have done their best to make our junior high school days the best years of our lives. They are teaching us to be good citizens and to get along in the world now and when we leave school. Mr. Hoyt has been at Phelps for two years; he teaches social studies and English. If you have a science or an algebra problem, the man to take it to is Mr. Guthrie. This is his first year at Phelps. Miss Talle has been at Phelps six years. She teaches English and social studies. Special teachers are Miss Marian Davis, who teaches Spanish and French; Miss Dorothy Clapper, the physical education teacher; Miss Georgia Garlid, the music teacher; the shop teacher, Mr. Hugh Capron; and Mr. Mike Bambenek, the boys' physical education teacher."

Annual Fund Drive

We announced in the 1978 annual fund drive flyer that for each $600 we raised over the 1977 total fund drive figure we would award an additional $500 scholarship. Well, with only a couple of months to go this year, we haven't yet reached our goal. If you haven't put some green in that pink envelope, please do it! As a matter of fact, any envelope will do. The four recipients were ever so grateful for the excellent financial assistance awarded to them. It would sure be nice to award six $500 scholarships for 1979-80.

Annual Alumni Banquet

Over the past four or five years the annual Alumni Banquet has become one of the most popular events for alumni. We are now planning for that occasion which will be held Saturday, April 28, 1979. We will honor the classes of 1909, 1919, 1929, and recognize the class of 1939.

In preparation for the annual banquet, we are seeking your help in locating some of the graduates from the Silver Anniversay Class of '29. If you have a current address for any of those people listed below, please put it on the insert card in this magazine and send it on to us as soon as possible. We would like to have the biggest banquet ever in 1979.

Warrior Club Formed

Last Spring a Warrior Club was formed to replace several clubs, such as the Cager Club, Quarterback Club, Winona Mat Club, etc., which had similar goals and objectives. The purposes of WARRIOR CLUB, INC. are:

To unite, in an organized effort, the friends and alumni of Winona State University (WSU) who wish to express their interest in the University and desire to serve it through their particular interest in WSU athletics.

To uphold the aims and policies of athletics at WSU and athletic conference or athletic governing organization in which WSU holds a membership.

To encourage the attendance at WSU of outstanding perspective students who may contribute to WSU athletics.

To encourage and promote attendance at WSU athletic events.

To contribute, through Warrior Club, Inc., to athletic scholarships and athletic grants-in-aid which shall be distributed according to athletic governing organization regulations and Title IX regulation.

A goal of the Warrior Club for its first year of operation was to raise $10,000 through a membership and general solicitation drive. THAT GOAL HAS BEEN REACHED AND EXCEEDED. Recognizing that $10,000 is considerably less than the amount raised by some schools against which WSU competes, the club plans to augment the membership funds with income from special projects during the year. We strongly urge alumni, particularly those who have special interest in intercollegiate athletics to join the WARRIOR CLUB.

For further details and application forms, please contact the President, Warrior Club, P.O. Box 30014, Winona, MN 55987.

WSU Creates University Relations Area

This past August marked the beginning of a newly created administrative area at Winona State known as Development and University Relations. This area, created through the combining of two previously existing offices, Special Services and Information Services, with a third new office, Development, will be responsible for the planning, implementation, and coordination of university publications, news and media services, public relations, and institutional fund raising programs.

The University Relations area will be directed by Dr. Harry Gianneschi, who will also serve in the dual role of Director of Development. The University Relations staff will consist of Richard Davis and Phyllis Malotka in Publications, and Janet Sill and Gary MacDonald in News & Media Services. Linda Wood will serve as secretary for the new area.

In creating the University Relations area, Winona State hopes to achieve an expanded and more broad-based institutional advancement program aimed at generating greater understanding and support from its external constituencies. The goal of University Relations, according to Gianneschi, "is to bring together the many creative talents of our staff into a unified and powerful effort to promote WSU."

"We believe that by centralizing publications, news and development operations," continued Gianneschi, "we cannot only maximize the results of the University's overall public relations program but we can also strengthen the specific efforts of each of our divisions. Although everyone on our staff will have individual responsibilities and duties, we will be able to collectively work on many programs, ideas, and activities."

While the Development and University Relations area is still only in its infancy stage, Gianneschi and his staff have already outlined a number of objectives they hope to achieve during the current academic year. One of the first priorities, for example, will be the planning and development of a university fund raising program. "There is no question that Winona State needs greater private financial support," commented Gianneschi. "Contrary to popular belief, a public university is only tax assisted, not tax supported. Therefore, we must continually rely upon private contributions to maintain and enhance the quality of education we want for our students." To obtain added private support for WSU Gianneschi stated that he and his staff will be spending this first year outlining and implementing a more broad-based fund-raising program. "Although Winona State has historically received some very nice contributions,"

Gianneschi contended, "these gifts have come from a very select few individuals and businesses. It is our hope that we can generate greater support for WSU by designing a program that will encourage increased involvement by alumni, parents, businesses and corporations, and faculty/staff. If we could double or triple the number of people who annually give to WSU," Gianneschi concluded, "we could have a good start toward raising the funds necessary to making Winona State a greater university."

A second objective of the University Relations staff will be to upgrade the quality of university publications. According to Gianneschi, WSU produces over three hundred and forty publications annually, and that is simply too many for the current staff to handle effectively. "Winona State is blessed with an outstanding publications professional in Richard Davis," Gianneschi commented, "but his present workload doesn't allow him the time to use his many talents on every publication job. Thus, we hope to work this year with the faculty and staff in an effort to reduce the quantity of our publications and to increase the quality of those we do produce."

The third University Relations objective centers upon an effort to encourage greater press and electronic media coverage of Winona State University. It is in regard to this area, that Gianneschi is most optimistic... He states, "There are two ingredients necessary to a successful news and information program. First, the University needs to have a good working relationship with the media, and second, the University needs to provide the media with the stories, data, photographs, and materials necessary for them to provide adequate coverage. At Winona State," Gianneschi continued, "we are fortunate, because of the efforts of Janet Sill, to have a good working relationship with the media. And now with the addition of Gary MacDonald to our staff, we have an excellent photojournalist who will help us to supply that media with the materials they need to do their job. It looks like a great year for us in our effort to provide the faculty, staff, and students of WSU with better and faster external coverage of their courses, research, events and activities."

Overall then the Development and University Relations area should prove to be a very welcome addition to the University. As a new enterprise, it will take some time before its full impact is evident. The staff of the new area, however, is optimistic that they will be able to move quickly in providing the University much greater service through the new "team" approach.
